The former president devoted most of his article, "Ike Takes a Look at the GOP," to criticizing Republican pessimism and urging the GOP to build at the local level, particularly in cities.

He also suggested that the party get on with the job of winning this year's state elections and not be diverted by speculation about 1964. However he granted that sheer curiosity about the 1964 candidate could not be stifled.

Ancient Human Relic Displayed

HARRISBURG (AP)-The most ancient human relic ever found in Pennsylvania will go on display in the state museum Tuesday. It is the 6,000-year-old skull of an Indian discovered by state archeologists at an ancient camp site on the Juniata River 14 miles south of Huntingdon. The remains were found in explorations last summer. The fragmented skull was pieced together by state archeologist John G. Whitthoft.

"This was the skull of a mar of perhaps 40 to 45 years old," said Whitthoft. "It is practically identical to that of modern In-

Whitthoft said he is hopeful that further explorations of the site on the Raystown Branch of the Juniata will disclose even older human remains from as long as 40 to 46. Sun rises 5:20 a.m.; sets 10,00 years ago.

Before anyone embarks on an important venture, it's only the part of wisdom to try to learn the experience of others who have followed similar trails.

That little truism goes for government, as well as an individual. It can be applied to proposals for government domination of medicine.

England's socialized National Health Service provides our precedent here. And we can go to English authorities to see what the results have been.

A documentary film prepared by the British Broadcasting Corporation said that some patients "have been waiting as long as six years for surgery." A well known British journalist reported that "the number of people medically insured for private treatment has risen by more than 1,000 percent . . . "because" . . . Socialist medicine is just not good enough." A distinguished Oxford professor found that the system has "... progressively creating despondency and frustration among the doctors . . .'

An AP release told of the complaints of patients at over-crowded waiting rooms, and of physicians' complaints of excessive work-loads and underpayment. A British doctor now in this country wrote, "The poor British taxpayer has been milked dry. The Health Service now costs more than five times the original estimate." The Chicago Tribune's London Bureau Chief said that British "hospitals have 500,000 on their waiting lists."

So it goes . . . and such a list could be continued almost indefinitely. The question for us is: Shall we emulate, in any way, such a costly and disastrous

Sorry Example For Schools

Perhaps there's something to be weighed soberly by other communities in the wake of the strike by New York City schoolteachers. In many places teachers have wage and other griev-

Regardless of the issues that precipitated the walkout, this much is clear: Schoolchildren saw their teachers on strike and picketing the schools. They saw some teachers waving placards and shouting—in defiance of a law that in the interests of public safety forbids strikes by municipal employes in vital community services.

The teachers, it is almost certain, have lost something that they will be a long time regaining if, indeed, they ever regain it. And that is the respect of their pupils and of the parents as well. The teachers have set an example that tends to undermine not only their own authority but also all authority, and they have thereby impaired their usefulness to the children and the community.

There are times when legal strikes are inevitable and even salutary. But when adults whose chosen work is teaching children act irresponsibly and illegally, what sort of behavior can be expected from the children they teach?

It is on the basis of this definition that the Internal Revenue Service taxes thieves, gamblers, prostitutes and other immoral persons and sources of income, without regard to the method by which the funds were accumulated. Al Capone's crime, for which he was punished, was not murder or vice, but failure to pay income taxes.

In a word, a person may do as he pleases with his earnings and accumulations of capital provided he pays his taxes.

The prudent person employs his accumulations of wealth, whether inherited or earned, to increase his estate, to provide for his family, to leave a legacy after his death. He may do this in many ways, such as purchasing insurance, keeping money in savings banks, purchasing he believes in profits; if he does real estate, bonds, shares of enterprises, etc.

There can be no purpose in any of this economic activity unless the accumulation increases. Some persons choose conservative methods for this purpose; others are more speculative. If they purchase shares in a company, the investors have two hopes: One, that the value of the shares will increase through good management; two, that the company will issue dividends, which, in effect, are a share of the profits earned by this economic activity.

Of course, sometimes the investment is lost through poor management, the elimination of the industry from the market, non-competitive conditions, etc. But the purpose of the investment is not to lose but to gain, and a gain can only be made through a profit,

The easiest way to produce a depression is to put a ceiling on profits, because in such an eventuality those who possess accumulations of wealth either send it out of the country, purchase shares in foreign companies, convert their money into foreign currencies, put their money into savings banks or in a shoe-box under the bed.

President Kennedy, in his quarrel with the steel companies, might have used other grounds for attack, but when he attacked the concept of profits, his anger led him astray. Primaries Still Confusing

By Mason Denison Harrisburg - With less than a month to go before the May approved installation of storm 15 primary, there is considerable question at this point as to what if anything has been accomplished on the statewide candi- voters - left?

cently purchased by county comcolumn, the primary in Pennsylmissioners arrived in the county. vania this year is pretty much a "rigged" affair - the cut-anddried organization candidates Stroudsburg Kiwanis Club had long ago having been tapped by the usual select few within each party.

Or, to strike an analogy, quoting President Kennedy in reference to the controversial $6 per ton steel price increase: 'A tiny handful of steel executives whose pursuit of private power and profit exceeds their sense of public responsibility." The governorship in both parties is the only office being contested, the question of candidates for U.S. Senator, Lieutenant-Governor and Secretary of Internal Affairs having been duly settled by single entries. What then is in the offing for Pennsylvania voters next month? Not much — but notwithstanding this fact, some interesting developments have broken on the horizon in the gubernatorial walkathon.

In the first place the primary campaign - as such - this year has broken out into almost a full-fledged general election campaign, You'll find your candidates today for the most part busy running a mimeograph mill lambasting the opposition party - not the "opposition" candidate within the party.

Secondly, Democratic State Chairman Otis B. Morse and Republican State Chairman George I. Bloom already are concentrating their fire on each other and the opposition candidates in such fine degree that it's difficult to remember just in the Wooddale section of the who is running. The question seemingly bothering most observers and some party strategists around Capitol Hill at this point is: what's going to be left by the time the real campaign gets under way; will there by any issues - or

Insofar as the gubernatorial As pointed out earlier by this candidates within each party are concerned - on the Democratic side organization candidate Richardson Dilworth most certainly has things pretty much his own way, his two opponents, Charles J. Schmitt, of Girard, Erie County, and Harvey F. Johnston, of McKees Rocks, on a comparative basis are strictly "inactive."

> Republican gubernatorial candidate William W. Scranton (of Scranton) who enjoys "organization" backing has only one opponent in the person of former State Grange Master J. Collins McSparran, of Lancaster Coun-

It is generally felt that Mr. Scranton will win his gubernatorial candidate wings next month - but that an upset "could" occur in favor of Mr. McSparren, with chances of this continuing at about 40-60 at the moment.

One of the peculiarities of the current GOP gubernatorial campaign is the fact that Mr. Mc-Sparran in his independent scurry apparently has the ability to build up somewhat impressive mounds of strictly local support in his behalf - but without these local mounds forming into anything like a single, solid statewide mound, Therein lies the extremely questionable factor, and the only one worth a second look in the entire primary campaign. Will these individual "local swells" by May 15 turn into anything cohesive? No one has the answer and no one will until after May 15.

It is the only imponderable of the current primary.

Nuclear Engine Tests Held Periodically

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

WASHINGTON, April 17 - The National Aeronautics & Space Administration is stepping up the development of Rover, the nuclear-powered rocket, so it can be flight tested by 1966.

Tests of nuclear reactors at the rate of one every two months are being scheduled at the Atomic Energy Commission's testing site in Nevada to permit scein tists to select the first nuclear engine this year.

A nuclear engine selection in 1962 is essential if NASA scientists are to meet the proposed flight test schedule calling for the use of nuclear-powered rockets for space exploration to the planets in the late '60s.

Q. I own some Australian Oil & Gas Stock. That Australian company is offering its stockholders the right to buy one new share(at about $1.70 in U. S. money) for each two shares owned. My broker says that it is illegal for me to exercise my rights and buy new stock. He can't explain why.

A. Sure. It's because you live n the United States. The new shares being offered by Australian Oil & Gas have not been registered, with the U.S. Securities & Exchange Commission, for distribution in this country.

Your broker and all brokerdealers in this country are specifically prohibited from assisting customers, in any way, in exercising those rights. In a case such as this, the only activity in which a U. S. broker-dealer can legally engage is "to look toward the sale of the rights abroad." That quote comes from the SEC.

In other words, your broker can sell your rights for you, most likely to someone in Aus-

And you should sell the rights before they expire. Each right has a current value of somewhat less than $3.50.

All this does not prevent you or anyone else from buying or selling stock of Australian Oil & Gas in the U.S. But it is illegal for you to exercise your rights and buy the shares involved in the rights offering. The shares involved in a rights offering are counted as a "dis-
